

Judith Tran

April 1, 2014

Parents,

Early childhood intervention and school readiness preparation programs are an essential part of getting children educationally prepared for formal schooling. It can mean the difference between being ahead or behind once school starts. The US Department of Education's (Ed.gov) website lists a significant number of research studies that all assert the same facts about the efficacy of such programs to increase school preparedness.

Nancy Bryan's school readiness program prepares children for several key things:

- An educational readiness to learn
- An introduction and reinforcement to formal school processes and expectations
- A positive attitude towards school and learning
- A child centered learning approach

Nancy uses many educational techniques that are proven to motivate, educate and reinforce concepts. Her model is adaptive based on the learning needs of each individual child, while also pushing them to excel. Nancy possesses extensive experience in teaching the curriculums of Pre-K4, kindergarten and first grade, which gives her the ability to meet each student where they are in this program.

Nancy Bryan is the single best early childhood teacher I know, and I highly recommend her summer readiness program to any parent who wants to ensure that their child is ready and fully prepared to start and excel in their formal schooling.

Sincerely,

Judy Tran, Ed. D.

Special Education of the Gifted and Talented

Teacher's College, Columbia University

iat77006@yahoo.com

(713) 862-6761